

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election endangers not only our democracy but the freedom of broadcasting itself.

Think about it: The backlash from this kind of politically motivated, outrageous behavior may well be a ground swell of public demand that our airwaves be taken away from private enterprise and put under ironclad governmental control like the BBC in England. And if this is the use to which our free air can be put, then perhaps this is exactly what needs to happen.

What a shame that one organization is free to wreak such havoc against the very public that has allowed it such free reign. These people need to be ashamed of themselves!

Sincerely yours,
Margaret Neal
